

It just broke, the way a bubble would break.
The reading lamp was on, there was no stopping the blood. From the record player came I Gave My Love a Baby That Did Not Cry. There were dark spots on the carpet that turned out to be chewed gum, severely punishable. A spider jumped out of an old Easter basket.
All the lights in the house were on. There was a humming noise coming from a tree.